

RECYCLED SEA GLASS JEWELRY

Our Story....

The Solares recycled sea glass jewelry project was founded in 1994 by Anetta Van Haagen, a European businesswoman with love for the arts and the environment, and Simon Harrison an Australian jewelry designer and a social justice advocate. With Simon's manufacturing facility in the Philippines and Anetta's close connections with the American market, they founded this company to reflect their personal values and principles including an eco-friendly mindset, coupled with socially responsible manufacturing practices in partnership with local and indigenous communities. Twenty years later, Solares has become a leading recycled sea glass jewelry designer and manufacturer that has acquired 2,600 loyal wholesale customers on five continents.

Solares jewelry is hand-crafted from recycled wine, beer, liquor and soft-drink bottles which are then fashioned with complimenting semi-precious stones, fresh water pearls, silver beads and other natural materials. Our glass is collected through recycling plants and depots in Australia and the Philippines. The glass is then hand-cut, ground, drilled and processed using lapidary methods to create attractive and unique frosted glass beads and components. All jewelry is exclusively designed by Anetta in her studio in Clarksville, Maryland and then hand crafted by Filipino artists, craftsmen and women in workshops that adhere to ethical and Fair Trade practices.

Jewelry Components and Characteristics

- All components used are lead, nickel and cadmium free, and manufactured under safe and fair labor practices.
- All wire used is stainless steel.
- All findings are silver plated.
- All ear-wires are hypoallergenic surgical steel.
- All necklaces are 18 inches long, plus a 1.5 inch extender chain
- All glass pieces may slightly vary in size or color due to nature of the material.
